ASCE UCD encourages engagement within the ASCE chapter by community outreach and working closely with engineering professionals. The chapter strives to foster academic growth and to provide an impact to the student ASCE community across the western region through innovative projects, competitions, and forums.

1) ASCE 2017/2018 Board

Torynne Hart — President
Torynne joined ASCE last year as conference coordinator and is the 2017-2018 president. She hopes to build on the current foundation of ASCE. With the help of the new board, Torynne will cater to the needs of ASCE members and ensure quality at every event.

Layth Salemeh — Vice President of Sponsorship
Layth was a sponsorship officer last year and worked closely with the engineering joint council and Chi Epsilon. Now vice president, Layth hopes to improve the ASCE career fair by reaching a company attendance of 30 and getting more student involvement.

Olivia Potash—Vice President of Events
Olivia has spent the past year as secretary for ASCE. She dealt with details of ASCE meetings, the newsletter, and the website. This year, she’ll be overseeing some of the events she helped with before, ensuring ASCE events run smoothly.

Scene Wan — Treasurer
Scene spent the past year as a membership officer helping wherever he was needed. Next year, Scene will be responsible for ASCE’s finances; including budgeting, reimbursements, and any transactions for ASCE.

Miranda Young — Secretary
Miranda will be responsible for many of the details invested into ASCE events. Although this is her first year on the ASCE board, she has spent the past year as a design lead on ASCE’s construction management team. She will keep track of all ASCE events.

Nora Titus—Outreach and Community Service Chair
Nora is a veteran on ASCE; as a board member, Nora spent last year helping with the career fair and the construction competition on campus. Her position on the board next year entails community outreach and she hopes to make a great impact locally through ASCE.
Jordan Dawson — Conference Coordinator
Jordan will be responsible for organizing the major conferences of ASCE next year, such as MidPac, which he attended as a member of ASCE’s Geowall team. Jordan is looking forward to ensuring everything runs as smoothly as possible.

Raymond Mallari—Publicity Chair
Raymond spent the past year paddling, designing for Concrete Canoe and contributing to the transportation project. As publicity chair, Raymond hopes to increase ASCE’s popularity within our major, while also updating students and faculty on ASCE’s events.

2) MidPac and PSWC Results
ASCE members traveled to Chico, California for the 2017 Mid-Pacific Conference. Mid-Pac allows civil engineering students to demonstrate leadership and technical knowledge in several design competitions, share ideas, and overall have a lot of fun! We had 75 ASCE members attend the conference, compete, and show their support for fellow members and project teams. UC Davis ASCE proudly won 4th place overall in the Conference. Here are some of the rankings per project team:

• Water Treatment – 2nd place overall (out of 11)
  o Construction Time and Cost – 1st place
  o Design Report – 2nd place
• Concrete Canoe – 4th place overall (out of 9)
  o Women’s Slalom/Endurance Race – 2nd place
  o Women’s Final Sprints – 2nd place
  o Men’s Final Sprints – 4th place
  o Men’s Slalom/Endurance Race – 4th place
  o Coed Final Sprints – 3rd place
  o Design Paper and Oral Presentation – 4th place
  o Final Product – 4th place
• Transportation – 3rd place overall (out of 6)
• Steel Bridge – 5th place overall (out of 11)
• Geo Wall – 7th place overall (out of 9)
• Mead Paper – 9th place overall (out of 10)
• Mini Games
  o Tug of War – 1st place overall (out of 11)
  o Volleyball – 2nd place overall (out of 11)

The up-and-coming ASCE Construction Management project team attended the Pacific Southwest Conference (PSWC) in Irvine for the first time. Our team put up a good fight and came home with a bigger, better toolbox full of ideas and excitement to prepare for next year!

3) Certificate of Commendation
For the first time in our chapter’s history, ASCE UCD earned a distinction by making it to the top 5% among 337 ASCE student organizations nationally. This accomplishment reflects the hard work and dedication of each member of the student chapter, as well as fine guidance from the faculty advisor. This year, the student chapter had represented UC Davis in more conferences than ever. The students attended the Mid-Pacific Student conference, the Pacific Southwest Conference, the National G-I Geo-wall Competition, and the Workshop for Student Leaders.
4) ASCE Scholarship

Three UC Davis students, Alexandra San Pablo, Aliya Karimi, and Dolores Aguirre, were awarded the Alfred R. Golze Scholarship this year. The Golze Scholarship recognizes deserving civil engineering students who have shown academic achievement and are active members of their ASCE student chapters. Award recipients attended an awards dinner with the Sacramento ASCE Chapter where they got the opportunity to network with local companies and student award winners from other schools in the region. This year, the fund awarded $61,000 to 21 students. Congratulations to all the recipients.

5) Guest Speaker – Martin Ranalli

On May 4th, ASCE hosted a guest speaker from Webcor Builders. Project Manager Mr. Martin Ranalli spoke about about his career, what he does for Webcor, and the career possibilities in construction management. As the construction market continues to grow, ASCE provides new opportunities within new civil engineering fields. Mr. Ranalli, who is a UC Davis Alumni, discussed the realities and expectations of going into construction management.

6) Social Events/Fundraisers

This spring quarter members of UC Davis ASCE organized and attended a fundraiser at Blaze Pizza in order to raise money for this year’s Mid-Pac Conference. One of the socials this quarter was a hike at Hidden Falls Regional Park, a gorgeous 1,200-acre park with miles of trails. Students enjoyed their Saturday morning on May 7th walking through the trees and feeling the spray of a waterfall hidden within the park on their faces. The sun was shining and those who attended had a great time!

7) Annual Barbeque and Awards

ASCE held its annual barbeque for members and alumni at West Village on June 3rd! For the first time our chapter gave out awards to our most outstanding members, project managers, and officers. Certificates for funny awards like “Most Sparkling Personality” and “Most Likely To Be Seen In Ghausi!” were also given out. Members and alumni had a wonderful time socializing, eating burgers, and enjoying the pool.
